Let's Start!

They're bringing the cattle to the Shimunenga ceremony!

Learning Outcome

Describe detailed facts about events or actions in work and social contexts, in written or spoken situations.

Ask your partner:

- What cultural events are held in your country?
- Why are cultural events important for a society?

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about different cultures, civilizations, and social issues.
- I can express necessity, duty, and advice.
- I can talk about unusual events in the past.

Let's Explore!

Every woman wants to be told that her garment is beautiful!

* A "garment" is a piece of clothing.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

The Shimunenga hasn't begun yet! The women's traditional leopard skin clothing needs to be brought out. It needs to be carefully looked at. Here and there, the clothing requires mending or cleaning. Every woman wants to be told that her garment is beautiful. The young women need instructing on how to dance.

Have you recently arrived in Namwala? Have you ever wanted to experience the Shimunenga? Have you only just been told it happens this weekend? How much have you found out so far? I haven't been to one myself up to now!

Has the first rain of the season just fallen? Yes, it has! That's why the ceremony takes place this weekend. Also because the full moon hasn't arrived up to now. Both of these are required to happen before the ceremony can begin.

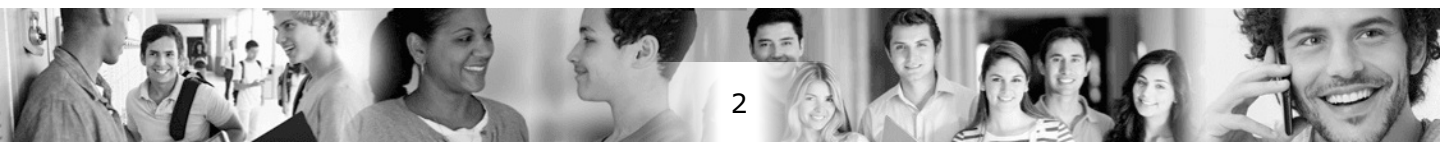

On Friday, the women sing and dance, while the men stay in the villages, to relax and focus on land affairs that require discussing.

On Saturday, the men's day, the women bring sticks, which symbolize spears that need to be thrown at the men. There are dances that need doing and songs that need singing.

Appreciation gifts are required to be given to performers. Then, people move to the chief's palace for speeches and praise songs. This is a time for songs and games.

On Sunday, the best cattle from each family are displayed to impress the neighbors. After that, there are other games, dancing, and mock battles that need to be enjoyed.

Have you ever been part of such an exciting event? Come along. We can enjoy it together.

Let's Practice!

What has happened?

Learning Points

Passive Gerunds and Infinitives with Need, Require and Want

You use different rules for infinitives and gerunds when they come after the verbs need, want and require.

The rule depends on whether you want a passive or active meaning.

The verbs need, want and require can be followed by an active or passive infinitive.

For example:

I need to give him a quick call. (active meaning)

Sometimes, people don't need to be told the truth. (passive meaning)

My position requires me to accommodate many different personalities. (active meaning)

They required the project to be delivered by the end of the day. (passive meaning)

I wanted to stay a little while longer. (active meaning)

It was obvious that he wanted to be included. (passive meaning)

Active gerunds, however, after these verbs express passive meanings:

Your beard needs shaving. (It should be shaved.)

These documents require careful handling. (They should be handled carefully.)

The tables want cleaning. (They should be cleaned.)

Take a look at some examples from the text:

Examples:

- The women's traditional leopard skin clothing needs to be brought out.
- It needs to be carefully looked at.
- Every woman wants to be told that her garment is beautiful.
- Both of these are required to happen before the ceremony can begin.
- There are spears that need to be thrown at the men.
- Appreciation gifts are required to be given to performers.
- After that, there are other games, dancing, and mock battles that need to be enjoyed.
- The young women need instructing on how to dance.
- Here and there the clothing requires mending or cleaning.
- They focus on land affairs that require discussing.
- There are dances that need doing and songs that need singing.
