

Instructor: Date:

Learner: Regional Branch:

Program: Center:

CONTENT

- Let's Start! • Let's Explore! • Let's Practice! • Extension Activity • Target Words • Learning Points

Let's Start!

Let's review!

Learning Outcome

Understand detailed descriptions of real or imaginary events and experiences in present, past or future and in spoken or written texts.

Can Do Statements

- I can report facts about events or actions.
- I can express a statement by focusing on the action.
- I can talk about unusual events in the past.

Ask your partner:

- What simple things do you think you take for granted?
- What things would you find it difficult to live without day to day?

Let's Explore!

They bring the water from the wells.

* A "well" is a deep hole that has fresh water at the bottom.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

Have you ever been to Africa? Traveling through the picturesque hills, stopping for a moment, can you hear the voices of children laughing and singing? The majority of the population of Africa is under fifteen. Children have now taken on the main jobs that need doing for the family.

They are required to bring the water from the wells. In a region that is known to be hot and dry, surviving without water is impossible. What has recently made a big difference in getting the water? It's the simple modern plastic bucket.

"In Africa, they have just started using plastic buckets!" you exclaim. "Have these things we all use just arrived there?"

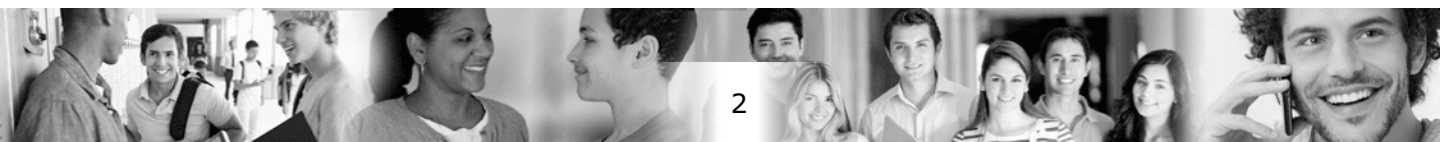

How can have they made things better? Before the plastic bucket came to Africa, water had to be carried over long distances in large, heavy clay vats.

The vats needed to be put on women's heads to be carried over great distances to bring water home. Most families had only one vat, considered to be the most valuable household object. It made them independent by having a water supply.

The plastic bucket has changed how the African woman's life has been up to now. They're inexpensive. Having them in different sizes means sharing the work!

The women are now free to do things. People are no longer kept waiting in the sun to get water. They can take a rest, and talk to their friends about the last mock battle or what the chief had to say.

To many Africans, this small two dollar item is a miracle.

Let's Practice!

Let's talk about Africa.

Instructions: Read the sentences. Choose the option that best completes the sentences..

1. Traveling / To travel / Traveled through the picturesque hills, stop / stopped / stopping for a moment, you can hear the voices of children laughing and singing.
2. To surviving / Survive / Surviving without water is impossible.
3. Before the plastic bucket, women were to have / having / had trouble bringing water home.
4. The women brought / bringing / to bring water used to wait in line in the sun.

Let's Practice!

What has happened?

Instructions: Draw a line from the first part of the statement on the left to the second part on the right to make correct sentences.

COLUMN A

COLUMN B

- | | |
|-----------------------|--|
| 1. Have you ever | a. been to Africa? |
| 2. Have these things | b. taken on the main jobs. |
| 3. The plastic bucket | c. made a big difference in getting the water? |
| 4. What has recently | d. we all use just arrived there? |
| 5. Children have now | e. have changed how the African women's lives have been up to now. |

Extension Activity

Talk about small things that can make a big difference in people's lives.

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- Brainstorm 10 things that you think could make a difference in people's lives if they had them.
- Write each item on a piece of paper.
- Practice saying how these items would change people's lives by focusing on the action.
- Share your 10 words with a partner and explain how these could help people.
- Make sentences to go with your partner's words.

Self-Assessment

Yes No

I think of 10 items that could make a difference in people's lives if they had them.

☐ ☐

I practice saying how these items would change people's lives, using gerunds and infinitives.

☐ ☐

I share my ideas with a partner.

☐ ☐

Target Words

- majority (noun): the largest part e.g. The majority of the population of Africa is under fifteen.
- region (noun): area
e.g. In a region that is known to be hot and dry, surviving without water is impossible.
- independent (adjective): without being supervised
e.g. It made them independent by having a water supply.
- mock battle (noun): a play fight e.g. They can take a rest, and talk to their friends about the last mock battle.
- chief (noun): head of the village
e.g. They can discuss what the chief had to say.
- sharing (noun): experiencing together
e.g. Having them in different sizes means sharing the work!

Learning Points

Uses of the Gerund: Review

A gerund is a noun formed with a verb ending in -ing.

For example:

Shopping is fun.

Smoking is a bad habit.

A gerund can be used as the subject of the sentence.

For example:

Living in small villages is what they have always done.

Maintaining their own traditions and values is what keeps them together and makes them unique.

A gerund can also be used as a complement of the verb "to be".

For example:

Vanessa is shopping.

I am reading a book.

Gerunds are used as adjectives when they describe something that causes an emotion.

For example:

The movie is exciting.

This is an interesting article.

Gerunds are used after prepositions.

For example:

Richard is good at playing the guitar.

You should improve the text by adding connectors.

Examples:

- Traveling through the picturesque hills, stopping for a moment, you can hear the voices of children laughing and singing.
- Surviving without water is impossible.
- In Africa, they have just started using plastic buckets.
- Having them in different sizes means sharing the work!
- People are no longer kept waiting in the sun to get water.

Learning Points

Passive Gerunds and Infinitives: Review

You use the passive form of a gerund or infinitive to emphasize that the subject of the sentence is being acted upon.

If the subject of the sentence is the agent (the doer), you use an active sentence with an active gerund or infinitive.

If the subject is not the agent, we use a passive gerund or infinitive.

Look at the following examples:

- They are required to bring the water from the wells.
- The main jobs for the family are being done by children.

Here, the focus is on the receiver of the actions. The agent, or 'doer', of the action is not the focus. It is understood by the context of the writing that the 'doer' of the action is a person and therefore not important.

Using passive forms of gerunds or infinitives adds variety and depth to your writing. This style of writing is used often in stories, articles and academic texts.

Examples:

- Children have now taken on the main jobs that need doing for the family.
- They are required to bring the water from the wells.
- This region is known to be hot and dry.
- Water had to be carried over long distances in large heavy clay vats.
- The vats needed to be put on women's heads to be carried over great distances to bring water home. Most families had only one vat, considered to be the most valuable household object.

